

What is Space Nation Astronaut Program?

The Space Nation vision is about bringing space into our everyday lives and about creating the world's largest community of space discovery, wellness and education. The first step towards this vision is the Space Nation Astronaut Program. The program is free of charge and accessible to all. With the program you can teach and challenge yourself in three categories: Body, Mind and Social.

The Space Nation Astronaut Program starts with a freemium smart phone application to be launched in February 2018. In the first stage, participants develop astronaut skills using the app, and compete for access to a physical training camp where the top performers will train under the supervision of real life astronaut trainers. The best performing participants will be selected for the final contest and the winner gets to travel to space... for real.

Space Nation - The Company.

Space Nation started as the childhood dream of Kalle Vähä-Jaakkola, a pig-farmer's son from Punkalaidun, a rural area in Western Finland, and now the CEO of Space Nation. For him, it has always been obvious we were going to space. Fast forward to 2010, when Kalle meets Mazdak Nassir, a film-director who later became the co-founder of Space Nation. For Mazdak, space has always captured his imagination, he's always wanted to know what's up there.

Now, the dream of two has become the dream of many, and the entire Space Nation crew is working hard to bring space closer to all of us, as part of our everyday lives. We are also creating the world's largest wellness and self-development community, brought to you for free through our very own app and our Space Nation Astronaut Program.

Since its founding in 2013, Space Nation has broken crowd-funding records, acquired a lab space on the International Space Station (ISS) and become the first space member of the United Nation's World Tourism Organization (UNWTO).
